

NO GUINNESS BEER IN AMSTERDAM SLAINTE PUB HAS THE LAST ST PADDYS STASH

If you're looking for craft beer and Irish hospitality in Amsterdam, the Slainte Pub might face a temporary hiccup, as it recently ran out of Guinness, a staple at any Irish establishment. However, the pub is known for its cozy atmosphere and community spirit, making it a great spot to catch the final remnants of St. Paddy's Day celebrations. Even without Guinness, Slainte boasts a diverse beer selection, and it often features live sports, creating an electric atmosphere. Catching sports events like rugby or soccer here is an experience like no other, especially surrounded by fellow fans. So don't miss out—it's one of the best places to enjoy match nights! Why Slainte Pub is Your Go-To Spot for Sports When it comes to watching sports in Amsterdam, Slainte Irish Pub stands out among the crowd. The atmosphere is charged with excitement, especially during high-stakes matches where fellow fans gather to cheer for their teams. Whether it's thrilling rugby matches or the nail-biting tension of a soccer game, there's always something happening. Did you know that rugby is one of the most popular sports in Ireland? The Six Nations Championship, held each spring, captivates fans as the best teams in Europe clash on the field. . .
