

DOES THE WHITE TULIP HOSTEL AMSTERDAM PROVIDE READING LIGHTS IN THE ROOMS?

The White Tulip Hostel Amsterdam provides reading lights in guest rooms, including both dormitories and private rooms[2][3][4][7][8]. Dormitory beds specifically list a personal reading light as an amenity, indicating that individual lights are available for guests in shared accommodations[2]. All major listings and recent hostel descriptions (2025) confirm this amenity as standard, with no recent negative user feedback disputing this feature[2][3][4][7][8]. Not all rooms may have exactly the same lighting setup: Most sources note that features like reading lights are present in "each guest room," but some third-party guidance suggests checking directly with the hostel if individual reading lamps are essential for your stay, as amenities sometimes vary by room or booking type[1]. SEO-relevant keywords on this topic: "White Tulip Hostel reading lights," "Amsterdam hostel amenities," "personal bed light hostel Amsterdam," and "hostel dormitory with reading lamp." Latest industry trend: Hostels increasingly advertise individual reading lights and power outlets as essential amenities, catering to digital nomads and budget travelers who value privacy and convenience while sharing a room. . .
